Another victory of Cristophe Nambotin at the Enduro World Championship

The GAS GAS rider Cristophe Nambotin got a new victory when he ran in the fifth test of the Enduro World Championship held in Puchov, Slovakia, last weekend.

The French rider ended up first in the test held last Saturday, ahead of his fellow riders, David Knight and Guillaume. However, Nambotin was not able to repeat his excellent performance the next day, and he got fourth place. It was Knight who got first in this test; and now the Enduro 3 category is tougher than ever.

There was more to celebrate for GAS GAS this past weekend. Robert Kvarnström got first place on Saturday and Sunday in the 125 2T category. He also participated in the Junior category, and he ended up fifth on Saturday and fourth on Sunday.

Lastly, another GAS GAS rider, Jordi Figueras, got 13th place in the Enduro 2 category.

This World Championship will continue on August the 28th. This sixth date will take place somewhere in Turkey.
