Nambotin wants to continue leading the Enduro Championship in his country

The GAS GAS rider Christophe Nambotin expects to maintain his excellent level of performance in the competition and to continue leading France's Enduro Championship. There will be a new test being held in the city of Scaer this weekend.

Nambotin has just gotten first place at the last test of the Enduro World Championship, which took place in Italy; and he has also won the previous test in the French city of Issoire. All of these victories were within the Enduro3 category. Right now, Nambotin is also one of the favorites for the first place on the podium in the scratch classification.

With regard to Yannick Bossi, he will not be taking part in the competition right now due to his injury after the fall.

In the female category, there will be quite a number of options for GAS GAS to get a first place since its female rider, Ludivine Puy, will be participating in the tests.
